

Sarah Morley earned her B.S. in Tourism, Conventions and Event Management from Indiana University-Indianapolis, and is currently a graduate student at Indiana University-Bloomington in the Department of Recreation, Park and Tourism Studies with a focus of Tourism Management. Ms. Morley worked for General Hotel Corporation for three years at several different properties located in Indianapolis, holding positions in guest services, sales and catering, and financial operations. General Hotels Corporation is one of Indiana's largest hotel management companies with over 1,400 associates, 1,800 sleeping rooms, and over 95,000 square feet of meeting and convention space. Ms. Morley's research interests include inclusive and accessible tourism; this includes the study of travelers with disabilities and the transport, architectural, informational, service, and attitudinal barriers they encounter while traveling